Art project at the time of Covid-19

This painful global experience must leave us something.

So I thought of sharing short reflections on my work useful for the project of a better future in which to live. Because this challenge is ours. History tells us. Let's live it in the awareness of being the protagonists of the whole of humanity.

The falcon, noble and powerful, possesses the sky and flies high above reality. It looks from afar, but see all details... It is the metaphor of the ability to evaluate free from conditioning in order to do what you consider right, at the right time. Because the urgency is already too late. We need to learn how to pursue important things, by ceasing to chase contingent urgencies. Only in this way we can build the future we desire, and we preserve our life rich in content and meaning. Otherwise, while we are running after the chimeras, we help others to make their dreams come true, and we find ourselves old and tired without realizing ours
