Este es el artista que creó una increíble estatua de Iron Man

Una escultura en honor al sacrificio de Tony Stark apareció recientemente en Italia

El fin de la saga de los Vengadores ha causado furor en todo el mundo. Y la muerte de Iron Man en Endgame entristeció a muchos fans de la historia de Marvel. Sin embargo, esto inspiró la creación de una estatua en honor al sacrificio final del superhéroe que salvó al mundo. La escultura del artista italiano Daniele Basso se encuentra ahora en Vía Carducci, en Forte dei Marmi, en la región Toscana.

En entrevista Basso conversó con PUBLIMETRO sobre esta obra suya y todo su trabajo, que se ha vuelto en viral en las redes sociales.

"Es el primer monumento dedicado a Iron Man en el año de su muerte en el mundo del cine. Celebramos a Tony Stark como un hombre que dedica la fortuna de su vida a luchar por los ideales en los que cree, recordándonos que todos somos los protagonistas de nuestro tiempo, que el futuro de la humanidad depende de nuestras decisiones... que todos debemos ser héroes"

Dice la leyenda en la placa de la estatua

P&R

DANIELE BASSO
Artista

¿Cómo surgió la idea de crear una escultura de Iron Man?
El arte para mí es una oportunidad para comunicarme a través de mensajes importantes de belleza. La oportunidad de recordarnos nuestra identidad individual y colectiva. Estimular las conciencias a un nuevo enfoque con el mundo.

Los superhéroes hablan con el niño que siempre llevamos en el alma. Nos recuerdan el sentido y el significado de hacer lo correcto. Quería recordar en el maravilloso y lujoso Forte dei Marmi y en el loco y divertido verano italiano, la importancia de nuestras elecciones y comportamiento en la vida cotidiana.

Somos los protagonistas del futuro en el que queremos vivir. Todos somos héroes en nuestra vida.

¿Es un gran fan de los Vengadores?
No soy necesariamente un gran admirador. Me encantan las películas de Avengers. Vi la mayoría de ellas. Ver cine es una forma muy divertida de relajarse y me encantan las de fantasía, en general.

Al contrario, no leo tantos cómics. Pero la mayoría de mis amigos son muy apasionados por los cómics. Absorbí muchas impresiones, emociones e información de ellos acerca de este maravilloso mundo.

¿Cómo creó la escultura?
Es un proceso largo. Muy complicado. Pero el resultado es asombroso. Me llevó seis meses desarrollar a Iron Man. Esta escultura está realizada en acero inoxidable y latón... muy difícil de sujetar. El proceso de acabado también fue muy largo.

Háblenos sobre la leyenda escrita en la placa.
Estoy acostumbrado a escribir pocas palabras sobre todos mis trabajos, mensajes cortos para ayudar a la gente a pensar en el significado de los mismos. El arte contemporáneo a menudo es difícil de entender. Pero me gustaría que mis obras hablaran a los corazones de la mayoría de la gente. Por eso las escribo.

ITALY ERECTS IRON MAN STATUE TO HONOR TONY STARK'S NOBLE DEATH IN AVENGERS: ENDGAME

We're not crying ... you're crying! In Spider-Man: Far From Home, we got a glimpse of just how big a martyr Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.) had become in the MCU after he nobly sacrificed himself to defeat Thanos (Josh Brolin) at the end of Avengers: Endgame. Just as murals were eventually painted to remember the selfless Marvel hero in Tom Holland's second Spidey film, life is now imitating art in our reality ... with even more art.

Italy, one of the main locations in Far From Home, recently erected a statue of Iron Man created by artist Daniele Basso in order to commemorate the hero's cinematic death. Named "Man of Steel" (yes, we know it's a bit confusing what with Superman and all), the sculpture is a touching tribute to the character in his classic superhero landing pose. Standing atop a large marble block in the seaside town of Forte de Marmi, the figure is made of bright stainless steel and brass. The inscription that goes with the piece loosely translates into:

"The first monument dedicated to Iron Man in the year of his cinematographic death celebrates Tony Stark, the man who used his great wealth to fight for the ideals in which he believed ... reminding us that we are the protagonists of our era. That the future of humanity depends on our decisions ... that all of us must be heroes!"

"Art, for me, is an opportunity to communicate important messages through beauty. The opportunity to remind us of our individual and collective identity. To stimulate consciences ... Superheroes talks to the child we always have in our souls. They remember us the sense and the meaning to do the right thing," Basso tells SYFY WIRE. "I like the Tony Stark character, who is not always right. [He's] a man with his imperfections, but uses all his influence and power to help others. So I wanted to remember this, which is my vision, the reason I choose Iron Man to send this message to the community. ... I wanted to remember, [even] in the wonderful and luxury of Forte dei Marmi (and in the crazy and funny Italian summer) the importance of our choices and behavior in everyday life."

Credit: Daniele Basso

Credit: Daniele Basso

The statue first began with a drawing from Basso, who then developed it further with a 3D computer program. From there, he had to build the 13-foot thing by welding together two metals that are very hard to bind to one another, even with heat. In fact, a brand-new process had to be developed in order to make the project a reality. That added an extra six months to the end date, which was literally years in the making. Sadly, Marvel was not involved in any stage of the statue's fabrication.

"This project comes from my personal passion for Avengers movies. And most of my friends are very passionate about comics. I took inspiration, emotion, and information from them about this wonderful world," adds Basso. "Iron Man was perfect to express the message I wanted to share: 'We all are heroes in ordinary life, and we must do our best to preserve our world and the values we believe in for the future we want to live in.' Today, when communication is so fast and problems are becoming more and more global, we need to know who we are to better understand where we want to go. Not just to follow the others. Our opinion is important, and we need to know that, and to exercise it."

A picture of the statue was originally posted on Reddit, but its details were confirmed to SYFY WIRE by Gianmarco Cantinotti, head of marketing and communication for Principe Forte de Marmi a five-star hotel in the Northern Tuscan city. Part of an exhibition entitled "Oltre Verso," Man of Steel will remain in the town until this coming Sunday, Sept. 8.

At this time, there are no plans to bring the exhibit to the U.S., but Basso is hoping he can show it off in Lucca, a town in Central Tuscany. He's also not opposed to making more statues of other Marvel heroes, but wants to stress that even with the epic depictions of comic book characters seen in things like Endgame, regular folks like us are the only ones who can really save the day.

"Yes ... why not?!" he concludes. "At the end [of the day], heroes are going to save the world in fancy [ways]. But we are able to save our world in real life."

You've Got to See This! Iron Man's 'Avengers: Endgame' Death Honored with Impressive Italian Statue

POW!  September 4, 2019

Marvel fans are pretty passionate—you can look to the uproar over the recent Spider-Man/MCU news as proof. (Not to mention that Avengers: Endgame is now the highest grossing movie of all time. That's proof too.)

With the demise of so many beloved heroes in MCU movies over the last year or so, naturally fans are grieving. Perhaps most of all, that grief has been directed to the loss of Tony Stark/Iron Man, whose standalone 2008 movie kicked off the entire MCU. As such a stalwart character, Stark went on to become a valuable leader within the Avengers, and his influence has certainly remained strong within the MCU; for instance, his death played a role in Spider-Man: Far From Home, particularly the way in which Peter Parker strove to live up to his mentor's legacy.

In addition to Far From Home, the loss of Stark has elicited tributes from around the globe. And one of them is extraordinarily epic. As shared by Krypton Radio, a statue honoring Iron Man in his classic landing pose has appeared in the Tuscan town of Forte dei Marmi in Italy, titled, ironically, "Man of Steel."

Apparently, the piece was made of steel and glass polished to appear mirror-like. Created by artist Daniele Basso, the statue appears as part of an exhibit called "Oltre Verso," which opened last month.

The figure also possesses a plaque lauding Stark, which reads:

The first monument dedicated to Iron Man in the year of his death in the cinematic world, we celebrate Tony Stark as a man who dedicates his life's fortunes to fight for the ideals he believes in ... reminding us that we are all the protagonists of our time – that the future of humanity depends on our decisions ... that all of us must be heroes!

Who else wants to hop a plane to Italy to see this magnificent monument in person? 'Nuff said!

MADRID, España. - Todos los eventos de Vengadores: Endgame han afectado de forma profunda al Universo Marvel y a su fandom, que ha tenido que despedirse de algunos de los personajes más carismáticos de la Casa de las Ideas. Es el caso de Iron Man, el emblema de la factoría, que no sólo fue homenajeado en Spider-Man: Lejos de casa, sino también en la realidad.

Y es que en Forte dei Marmi, en la Toscana, se ha alzado una estatua realizada por Daniele Basso en memoria de Tony Stark titulada 'El hombre de acero', tal y como adelantan los usuarios de Reddit. Título curioso, teniendo en cuenta que éste es uno de los alias de Superman, emblema de la "Distinguida Competencia".

La figura está acompañada de una inscripción que celebra al personaje de Marvel: "Este es el primer monumento dedicado a Iron Man en el año de su muerte en el mundo cinematográfico. Celebramos a Tony Stark como un hombre que dedicó la fortuna de su vida a luchar por los ideales en los que creía..."

"Mi nombre es Raúl, y quiero dar este testimonio real por la ayuda que hoy en día me tiene muy feliz. Yo soy un hombre que nunca le hago mal a nadie, trabajo honradamente para ayudar a mi familia, y un día comencé a sentir un peso en mi espalda, llegaba a la casa y por todo me enojaba, y comencé a pelear con mi esposa. Cuando ella encontró trabajo, vi que cambió mucho, perdió el cariño que me tenía, se quedaba a dormir con las niñas, y eso terminó por acabar mi paciencia. Un día ella me dijo que se iba y me dejaba. Eso me rompió el corazón, eran 9 años juntos. Vine con el maestro y me asombró porque me dijo lo que me estaba pasando y que el patrón de mi señora le había hecho un mal, y es verdad, porque el maestro me dijo que mi mujer lo rechazó y por eso fue que hizo todo eso, porque el señor tenía dinero. Me dijo que no tuviera miedo, que Dios me iba a ayudar y que estuviera tranquilo, que ella regresaría por sí sola, y así fue. Por eso quiero agradecer a los maestros, porque sí saben, y doy fe porque son muchas personas las que uno ve como yo y están agradecidas. Por eso les doy mi testimonio y mi foto en el altar para que todos vean que sí es verdad la ayuda. Gracias por esta linda CRUZ DE LA NATIVIDAD."

“Man of Steel”

De naam van het kunstwerk is een beetje ongelukkig, aangezien Basso besloot zijn chromen meesterwerk “Man of Steel” te noemen. En laat dat nou net de bijnaam zijn van een andere superheld die uit de stal van Marvels gezworen concurrent Marvel vandaan komt. Het is niet duidelijk of de kunstenaar met deze naam kwam om DC-fans te jennen, of dat die gewoon ontzettend ongelukkig gekozen is.

Italian Town Pays Tribute to Iron Man By Erecting Statue

By AARON PERINE - September 8, 2019 01:02 am EDT

Iron Man made the ultimate sacrifice in Avengers: Endgame and some fans are still reeling from losing their favorite hero. One fan in Italy wanted to make sure that no one forgot Tony Stark's fictional sacrifice. Daniele Basso created an Iron Man statue that stands on a slab of marble in Forte de Marmi. The sculpture is called "Man of Steel," despite being a work lionizing Iron Man, and captures the hero making his signature superhero landing from the first movie.

"The first monument dedicated to Iron Man in the year of his cinematographic death celebrates Tony Stark, the man who used his great wealth to fight for the ideals in which he believed..." The inscription reads, "Reminding us that we are the protagonists of our era. That the future of humanity depends on our decisions ... that all of us must be heroes!"

Such a proud statement seems to effectively eulogize Stark after the fateful snap that saved the Marvel Cinematic Universe. Using his fortunes to fight for the betterment of mankind fits in with the company's version of Iron Man. Just like in Spider-Man: Far From Home, the hero lives on as a symbol of hope and the human spirit.

Basso told SYFYwire, "Art, for me, is an opportunity to communicate important messages through beauty. The opportunity to remind us of our individual and collective identity. To stimulate consciences ... Superheroes talks to the child we always have in our souls. They remember us the sense and the meaning to do the right thing."

"I like the Tony Stark character, who is not always right. [He's] a man with his imperfections, but uses all his influence and power to help others. So, I wanted to remember this, which is my vision, the reason I choose Iron Man to send this message to the community ... I wanted to remember, [even] in the wonderful and luxury of Forte dei Marmi (and in the crazy and funny Italian summer) the importance of our choices and behavior in every day life," he concluded.

This statue was a nice gesture but fans have to come to the realization that Robert Downey Jr. is really done with these movies. Some fans are still hoping for some sort of return down the pipe. Marvel Studios president Kevin Feige and Endgame directors the Russo Brothers have all said that is not the case. That won't stop the fans from hoping, wishing, and paying their respects.

Bravo Tony! Italië geeft Iron Man een eigen standbeeld

Dit artikel bevat SPOILERS voor wie Avengers: Endgame nog steeds niet gezien heeft. (Maar waarom zou je in 's hemelsnaam op dit item over de grootste film aller tijden klikken als die nog op je watchlist staat?) Je kunt je vast nog herinneren dat Peter Parker in Spider-Man: Far From Home overal in Amerika én Europa monumenten tegenkwam ter nagedachtenis aan Tony Stark. Nu heeft een Italiaanse kunstenaar een écht standbeeld gemaakt om de overleden Iron Man te eren, de held die zich opofferde zodat de rest van het universum door kon leven.

Het beeld in kwestie staat in het Italiaanse kustplaatsje Forte Dei Marmi, en is gemaakt door kunstenaar Daniele Basso. Iron Man is hier te zien in zijn karakteristieke landende superheld pose. Het werk maakt deel uit van Oltre Verso, een 40 beelden tellende expositie van de kunstenaar. Vooralnog is het de bedoeling dat het monument nog maar een paar weken te zien blijft, maar zodra de burgemeester in de gaten krijgt wat voor toeristenmagneet ze hier in huis hebben zal het vast langer blijven staan. En terecht, want we hebben niet meer zo genoten van een standbeeld sinds James Corden David Beckham verraste met het evenbeeld van de voetballer.

Robert Downey Jr's Avengers hero Iron Man memorialised with Italian statue

 Rebecca Lewis Thursday 5 Sep 2019 7:34 am

Robert Downey Jr's Iron Man kicked off the Marvel Cinematic Universe as we know it and in Avengers: Endgame, he sacrificed himself for the greater good.

But his Tony Stark will live on forever, not just in our memories and our DVDs but also as a statue that has been erected in Tuscany, Italy.

Designed and created by artist Daniele Basso as part of a month-long exhibit called Oltre Verso, the statue is part of a 40-piece collection in the town of Forte Dei Marmi.

Basso named the statue – which features Iron Man in his classic three-point landing pose – Man Of Steel, not to be confused with DC Comics hero Superman, who is also known under the same moniker.

The plaque which runs alongside the statue is in Italian but translated reads: 'The first monument dedicated to Iron Man in the year of his death in the cinematic world, we celebrate Tony Stark as a man who dedicates his life's fortunes to fight for the ideals he believes in... reminding us that we are all the protagonists of our time – that the future of humanity depends on our decisions ... that all of us must be heroes!'

Taking to Instagram, artist Daniele added: 'Iron Man is alive and well...and he is in Forte dei Marmi!!'

'Iron Man has a magnetic heart, but I have a sensitive artist's heart! And the enormous appreciation I am receiving for my sculpture thrills me!

'Thank you all and remember: the future of humanity depends on our choices...all of us must and can be heroes!'

Endgame is thought to be Downey Jr's last outing as Iron Man with the MCU moving into phase four which will focus on the new guard of Avengers including Black Panther and Captain Marvel.

However the upcoming launch of new streaming service Disney+ will allow for more Marvel stories to be told, and it has been reported that Downey Jr will return as Tony once more in a voiceover capacity for rumoured new series Ironheart.

Ironheart follows Riri Williams, the teenage genius who continues Tony's legacy in the comics, and according to We Got This Covered their source alleges that the company has got Downey Jr on board to voice Tony who will appear as an AI – similar to Paul Bettany's J.A.R.V.I.S – and will help her train to become a superhero.

Italian town honours the late Tony Stark with an Iron Man statue

For some, (and very much despite the fact that he's not real) the loss of Tony Stark was just too much to bear.

And so that we never forget his fictional sacrifice to save the human race in Avengers: Endgame, he's been immortalised in statue form in a town in Italy.

The geometric interpretation of the Iron Man, kneeling with his fist to the plinth, is called – slightly confusingly, given Superman's nickname – 'Man of Steel', and is part of an exhibition of the work of sculptor Daniele Basso.

It stands on Via Carducci in the town, near the Piazza Marconi, with a plaque explaining the thinking behind the piece.

A lovely sentiment.

We know we say this a lot, but there's fresh proof that this really is Marvel's world and we're just living in it. In yet another case of life imitating Marvel Cinematic Universe art, Italian sculptor, Daniele Basso, has taken a page from the many Iron Man murals that populated Spider-Man: Far From Home and paid tribute to Robert Downey Jr.'s fallen Avenger in a new monument that made its debut as part of the Oltre Verso art exhibition in the Tuscan seaside town of Forte Dei Marmi. The artist shared images of his creation on Instagram recently, and fans are already loving it 3000.

Cheekily entitled "Man of Steel" — a reference to Iron Man's Distinguished Competitor in the DC Extended Universe — the sculpture preserves Tony Stark's classic three-point landing in all its metallic glory. Basso sculpted Iron Man's image out of mirror polished steel and glass. A plaque that accompanies the piece speaks of Downey's alter ego in the most glowing of terms.

Il personaggio di Robert Downey Jr è ricordato in un monumento dell'artista Daniele Basso, la prima opera che lo commemora dopo la sua morte cinematografica

Il personaggio di Iron Man come lo abbiamo conosciuto in questi ultimi dieci anni interpretato da Robert Downey Jr ha salutato il suo pubblico in un toccante epilogo visto durante l'epico Avengers: Endgame. Il lascito del supereroe che è stato fondamentale per fondare il Marvel Cinematic Universe e lanciare i cinecomics così come li conosciamo oggi è però ancora importante: dai toccanti momenti di Spider-Man: Far from home ai tanti tributi diffusi online, sono numerosi i ricordi che si succedono per commemorare questa figura. L'ultima in ordine di tempo arriva proprio dall'Italia, grazie a un monumento dedicato proprio all'eroe creato da Stan Lee.

“ First monument dedicated to Iron Man's death, erected in Forte dei Marmi (IT) from marvelstudios ”

Nelle scorse settimane, infatti, a Forte dei marmi è stata inaugurata la mostra dell'artista Daniele Basso intitolata Oltre Verso: oltre a una serie di statue in metallo realizzate dallo scultore e mostrate alla galleria del Fortino lorenese, in via Carducci si può osservare anche un vero e proprio monumento che richiama il modo inconfondibile in cui Tony Stark atterrava sulle ginocchia e col braccio alzato quando dotato della sua armatura. La posa dell'eroe è realizzata con la tecnica del metallo specchiato e frammentato tipica dell'artista in questione.

L'opera è intitolata Man of Steel (con un po' di confusione supereroistica, visto che l'Uomo d'acciaio è Superman) e vuole essere proprio un omaggio alla portata anche metaforica di Iron Man, che "ci ricorda che siamo tutti protagonisti del nostro tempo, che il futuro dell'umanità dipende dalle nostre scelte... che tutti noi dobbiamo essere eroi", come si legge nella targa commemorativa. A quanto si sa è anche la prima opera dedicata a Stark dalla sua morte cinematografica. La mostra rimarrà allestita nella cittadina versiliese fino al prossimo 8 settembre e si può visitare tutti i giorni dalle ore 18 alle ore 24.

Avengers Endgame: a Forte dei Marmi l'artista Daniele Basso nella mostra intitolata Oltre Verso, ha dedicato una scultura ad Iron Man.

di Piero Lombardi – Nelle scorse settimane l'artista Daniele Basso nella mostra intitolata Oltre Verso, ha dedicato una scultura ad Iron Man, l'opera: Man of Steel ritrae la figura di un uomo che atterra sulle ginocchia con il braccio alzato, tipica posa di Tony Stark, l'eroe degli Avengers.

La scultura è realizzata attraverso la tecnica del metallo specchiato e frammentato, già utilizzata dell'artista, ai suoi piedi la targa recita:

"Con il primo monumento dedicato ad Iron Man nell'anno della sua morte al cinema celebriamo Tony Stark come l'uomo che ha dedicato la fortuna della sua vita alla lotta per gli ideali in cui credeva, ricordandoci che siamo tutti protagonisti del nostro tempo, che il futuro dell'umanità dipende dalle nostre decisioni, che tutti noi dobbiamo essere eroi".

E' la prima volta che il personaggio interpretato da Robert Downey Jr viene rappresentato con una scultura, in passato abbiamo visto Capitan America a New York.

È comparso a Forte dei Marmi, in via Carducci, vicino a Piazza Marconi, incorniciato da un radioso tramonto. Venerdì 9 agosto 2019, con una cerimonia ufficiale, in presenza delle autorità locali, è stata inaugurata la mostra antologica "Oltre verso" di Daniele Basso, che insieme alle opere esposte fino all'8 settembre al Fortino Lorenese, include una curiosa installazione site-specific: un omaggio a Iron Man, appositamente realizzato dall'artista.

Icona pop legata al mondo dei fumetti e al Marvel Cinematic Universe, congedata con la "fine del viaggio" di Avengers: Endgame, Iron Man/Tony Stark ha incollato allo schermo un'intera generazione di adulti e ragazzini. Il monumento di Basso, noto per le sue sculture in acciaio lucidato a specchio, si intitola "Man of Steel" (facendo un po' di confusione con l'Uomo d'Acciaio-Superman) ed è stato realizzato in collaborazione con Laseryacht.

L'opera, ha spiegato l'artista biellese a Toscana Today, ci ricorda che "tutti noi combattiamo una battaglia e dobbiamo essere eroi". Sul basamento in marmo che sorregge la statua è stata infatti apposta una targa con dedica che recita queste parole.

Con il primo monumento dedicato ad Iron Man nell'anno della sua morte al cinema celebriamo Tony Stark come l'uomo che ha dedicato la fortuna della sua vita alla lotta per gli ideali in cui credeva, ricordandoci che siamo tutti protagonisti del nostro tempo, che il futuro dell'umanità dipende dalle nostre decisioni, che tutti noi dobbiamo essere eroi.

La posa di Iron Man, quella tipica sulle ginocchia e con il braccio alzato, è stata realizzata sempre con la tecnica del metallo specchiato e frammentato. A quanto pare, si tratta della prima opera d'arte dedicata a Tony Stark dalla sua "morte" cinematografica. L'allestimento è stato patrocinato del comune di Forte dei Marmi con quello di Lajatico, entrambi territori legati ad Andrea Bocelli.

Luego del furor que causó la última película de la Fase 3 del Universo Cinematográfico de Marvel (UCM), Avengers: Endgame, un monumento en honor al personaje de Tony Stark (Iron Man) fue puesto en Forte dei Marmi, en Italia.

Se trata de una estatua de acero y latón recordando a la pose de Iron Man cuando aterriza. Mide 4 metros de alto y fue diseñada por Daniele Basso para una exhibición llamada Oltre Verso (más allá del verso) en la galería Fortino Lorenese.

- La obra se llama "hombre de acero" en referencia a uno de los materiales usados para construirlo.

Además, viene acompañado de una placa en memoria del personaje:

“ El primer monumento dedicado a Iron Man en el año de su muerte en el mundo cinematográfico, celebramos a Tony Stark como un hombre que dedicó toda su fortuna y sus ida a luchar por los ideales en los que creía, en recordarnos que todos somos protagonistas de nuestro tiempo y que el futuro de la humanidad depende de nuestras decisiones y que todos debemos ser héroes".

La última cinta de Marvel Studios culminó la llamada "Saga del Infinito", en la que los superhéroes batallaron por última vez contra el villano Thanos.

Anche se ormai le ferie sono finite per tutti, non è mai troppo tardi (o troppo presto) per una gita fuori porta.

Se siete appassionati di arte potrete cogliere l'occasione di questi ultimi giorni d'estate per andare a Forte dei Marmi e visitare la mostra Oltre Verso di Daniele Basso.

La personale dello scultore sarà costituita da una quarantina di opere e un'installazione ambientale vi permetterà di esplorare la produzione artistica di Basso, che attraverso la sua ricerca estetica veicola tematiche sia universali che individuali.

Oltre Verso sarà un percorso che si proporrà di ispirare una riflessione e una crescita verso la realizzazione di progetti e sogni futuri.

Una delle opere che potrete vedere esposta è l'impressionante Man Of Steel, ispirata al personaggio di Iron Man e alla sua figura epica ed eroica. La scultura commemora il personaggio di Iron Man del Marvel Cinematic Universe e omaggia il suo eroico sacrificio avvenuto in Avengers: Endgame.

Man of Steel è una scultura realizzata nella tecnica del metallo specchiato e frammentato, segno distintivo dell'artista, che immortalava Tony Stark nell'atto di atterrare sul ginocchio, la sua posa più iconica.

Alla base della scultura vi è infatti apposta una targa che riporta le seguenti parole:

"Con il primo monumento dedicato ad Iron Man nell'anno della sua morte al cinema celebriamo Tony Stark come l'uomo che ha dedicato la fortuna della sua vita alla lotta per gli ideali in cui credeva, ricordandoci che siamo tutti protagonisti del nostro tempo, che il futuro dell'umanità dipende dalle nostre decisioni, che tutti noi dobbiamo essere eroi"

Questa opera è infatti vuole essere un'esortazione all'agire per essere protagonisti delle scelte e non semplici spettatori passivi. Queste scelte, piccole o grandi che siano, possono essere atti eroici in grado di fare la differenza.

La mostra Oltre Verso potrà essere visitata presso il Fortino di Forte dei Marmi, dalle 18:00 alle 24:00, fino al 8 settembre 2019 e potrete trovare Man of Steel esposta in via Carducci.
